NAVAL HOSPITAL JACKSONVILLE
JUNIOR SAILOR OF THE 3RD QUARTER

Religious Program Specialist Second Class (SW) James M. White was selected as Junior Sailor of the Third Quarter 2004 of Naval Hospital Jacksonville. This award recognizes outstanding contribution to Naval Hospital mission accomplishment and morale. RP2 White distinguished himself in several key areas. Functioning as alternate Lead Petty Officer, RP2 White demonstrated advanced levels of responsibility, leadership, and influence. Notably, this included the development of a new religious preference database which enables efficient and accurate provision of religious support to deploying service members and their families, coordinating training visits for Chaplains to six outlying commands, and leading the department in charity and community events. RP2 White made command-wide impact as a member of the Command Under My Wing Mentoring Program, managing a database of over 500 mentors and protégés. These professional accomplishments were enhanced by RP2 White's superlative military bearing. He was nominated for Outstanding during Fleet Hospital Uniform Inspection, placed 1st in the Hospital Fun Run, and enhanced his PRT score to the "Outstanding" level. He has been identified as a "go-to" person for his knowledge base, resourcefulness, and thorough professionalism. An important element of his selection as Junior Sailor of the Quarter is his aim toward advancement. He has made application to the Seaman To Admiral Program, is completing his Associates Degree, and looks forward to the opportunities of advancement in his rate. Understandably, RP2 White is an inspiration to all Petty Officers and a credit, especially, to the Religious Program Specialist community. Well done, RP2 White!
